Browning Communications Obtains Forest Stewardship Council (FSC) Certification

DeBary, Florida — Browning Communications was honored to receive the Forest Stewardship Council (FSC) Certification through Scientific Certification Systems, Inc. (SCS) on May 1, 2008. The FSC is an international organization that promotes environmentally appropriate, socially beneficial, and economically viable management of the world's forests.

Browning Communications received the FSC Chain-of-Custody certification, with certificate number SCS-COC-001522, after an extensive on-site audit from SCS, demonstrating that Browning Communications adheres to strict tracking requirements to guarantee that paper products sold as FSC-certified come from well-managed forests. "We can now assist those clients wishing to claim usage of FSC certified paper on their marketing or other print materials by following the claim guideline standards," said Dean O'Brien, President of Browning Communications. "We think it's important for companies to advertise their selection of FSC papers for print materials because sharing that message encourages all of us to think about the impact we make on the environment through our consumer choices."

Standard procedures and staff training for FSC compliance have been implemented throughout Browning Communications. FSC certified papers are tracked from the point of purchase, through receiving and processing, and finally to delivering the final print products to clients.

SCS, over two decades, has developed internationally recognized standards and certification programs aimed at spurring the highest level of environmental improvements, social accountability and product performance, and is one of the leading, accredited FSC certification providers.

Browning Communications provides a full range of printing and direct mail services. The company, which began operations in 1986 is located in DeBary, Florida, optimally located between Orlando and Daytona Beach, and reaches a national market.
